

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A bendable lure including a lure main body that is formed by insert molding and is composed of a plurality of segments, which are disposed spacedly in a direction of the axis or length of the main body, and a flexible core member, which passes through the plurality of segments, so that the flexible core member can bend in gaps between the segments.